Advanced Patent Prosecution Workshop 2010: Claim Drafting & Amendment Writing

New York City, July 26-27, 2010
San Francisco, August 16-17, 2010

What's on the Agenda

The Workshop is designed for private or corporate practitioners with patent prosecution experience who wish to improve their general claim drafting and amendment writing skills. Registrants will have the opportunity to concentrate for two days on the specialized skills required in their technological area.

In this advanced program, you will receive hands-on drafting experience under the guidance of experienced patent prosecutors. After a morning of presentations on critical patent law and prosecution issues, you will be working in small technologically-distinct groups, where you will receive individualized feedback on claim drafting and amendment writing and learn practical techniques for avoiding prosecution pitfalls.

Structure of the Programs

The New York City Workshop is organized into four technology sections: Biotechnology; Chemical/Pharmaceutical; Electromechanical; and Electronics/Computers.

The San Francisco Workshop is organized into three technology sections: Biology/Chemistry; Electrical/Computer; and Mechanical. At both the New York City and San Francisco Workshops, two or three senior patent attorneys will lead each section. Homework review and realistic claim drafting and amendment writing exercises are special features of these Workshops. Homework must be completed and submitted upon registering on-site at the program. More information about the homework is available at www.pli.edu.

Be sure to register early. Enrollment is limited!
